RSD
AMBASSADOR 2021

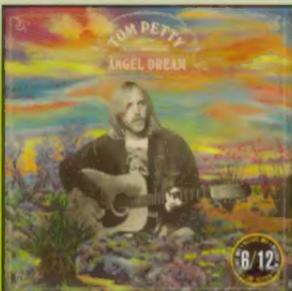

JUNE 12 — and — JULY 17

This year's musician/comedian/actor/writer/late-night-talk-show-bandleader is a definite fan, and it's not just the string of record store performances going back years that confirms it. We'll let the RSD Ambassador for 2021 tell you all about his love for vinyl records, the music they play, and the records they sell. (And yes! His name is going to be on one of the brand new records you can take home from a record store starting on July 17 as part of RSD Drops: a new EP from RSD 2021 AMBASSADOR FRED ARMISEN, produced by Ty Segall! More on that and all the other titles coming soon!)

I am so happy when I'm in a record store. It's a time when I'm not thinking about having to be anywhere else. Sometimes there's also a little bit of anxiety attached to record shopping... Will I remember every title I've been saving? Will I be able to find what I'm looking for? Will I have enough money in my bag? Will I fit in the section of music I need to learn more about? Will all of these records fit in my bag? Why am I pretending that I don't already have this Captain Sensible album I am getting?

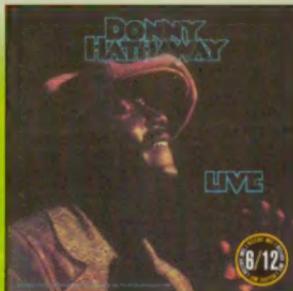

I've tried to support record stores as much as possible while they've been temporarily closed. I hope you can do the same. I really can't wait to get back to shopping in person. Really. I try to make every day a Record Store Day.

—Fred Armisen, 2021
